17th Polish Teletraffic Symposium 2012

Zakopane, Poland, December 6-7, 2012

<http://PTS2012.iitis.pl>

The Teletraffic Symposium brings together network operators and academic researchers to share their knowledge on the telecommunications techniques. The development of new network technologies which offer higher bandwidth, the deployment of mobile communications, modern services, multimedia, unlimited Internet access etc. create many problems that need to be solved, including: how to interwork existing services with Next Generation Internet and how to organize Future Internet, how to manage and optimise the transmission of growing traffic volumes, how to enhance network's performance. The 17th Polish Teletraffic Symposium strives to present original papers on recent research results, operational experiences and identification of key future issues in teletraffic networks in order to assure stimulating discussions on the following areas:

- Future Internet Engineering
- Teletraffic Theory, Modelling and Optimisation
- Performance Evaluation and Modelling of Communication Protocols
- Traffic Issues for Mobile Systems
- Mobility Models
- Traffic Issues for Internet
- Traffic Issues for High Speed, Packet-Switched Networks
- Traffic Models for Optical Networks
- Network Virtualization
- Performance Analysis Methods and Simulation
- Traffic Measurements
- Intelligent Routing Protocols
- Broadcast and Multicast Traffic Control and Management
- QoS/QoE Issues
